Benghazi Talking Points Under Fire

Congress investigating why link to al-Qaeda wasn't in initial reports

Washington

Lawmakers said Sunday they want to know who had a hand in creating the Obama administration's now-discredited talking points about the Sept. 11 attack on a U.S. diplomatic post in Benghazi, Libya, and why a final draft omitted the CIA's early conclusion that terrorists were involved.

The answers could explain why President Barack Obama and top aides, including U.N. Ambassador Susan Rice, described the attack for days afterward as a protest against an anti-Islam video that spontaneously turned violent and why they played down any potential link to al-Qaeda, despite evidence to the contrary.

A senior U.S. official familiar speaking on condition of anonymity said the al-Qaeda reference was deleted because the information came from classified sources and the links were tenuous.

Administration officials have defended the portrayal of the attack as relying on the best information available at the time that didn't compromise classified intelligence. Democrats say CIA and other officials signed off on the final talking points.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, who heads the Senate Intelligence Committee, said she doesn't believe the White House altered the document for political reasons. But she confirmed Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" that intelligence officials told her they were reluctant to name any particular terrorist group without being certain.

A Libyan man investigates the interior of the U.S. Consulate in Benghazi after the deadly Sept. 11 attack. Early information pointed fingers at a mob angry over an anti-Islam film.

"The narrative was wrong and the intelligence was right. ... We're going to get to the bottom of how that happened."

— REP. MIKE ROGERS, R-MICH., CHAIRMAN OF THE HOUSE INTELLIGENCE COMMITTEE, ON NBC'S "MEET THE PRESS" ON SUNDAY

She said Congress has asked the administration to provide a detailed explanation.

Ben Rhodes, Obama's deputy national security adviser, said Sunday that any substantive edits to the talking points would have come from intelligence agencies themselves. The only change the White House made, he said, was to correct a reference to the facility in Benghazi as a "diplomatic facility," instead of a "consulate."

"Other than that we were guided by the points that were provided by the intelligence community. So I can't speak to any other edits that may have been made," he said. ANNE FLAHERTY (AP)

Backstory
The inquiry into why the initial Benghazi talking points didn't include the terrorism reference to al-Qaeda comes on the heels of closed testimony last week by former CIA Director David Petraeus. According to lawmakers who attended the meetings, Petraeus said classified intelligence showed the raid was a terrorist attack but the administration withheld the suspected role of al-Qaeda affiliates to avoid tipping them off. Details Emerge in Fatal Crash at Texas Parade

Midland, Texas

Organizers of a parade in West Texas in which four U.S. military veterans were killed when a train plowed into a truck had been using the same route for three years, investigators said Sunday.

National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Mark Rosekind also announced that oilfield services company Smith Industries was the owner of the truck that served as a float during Thursday's parade in Midland.

Rosekind said the company was cooperating with investigators, who expect to interview the driver Monday.

The NTSB said no mechanical problems were found with the train cars or the tracks, and the train's maintenance history was clean. Investigators will try to establish on Monday what the engine could have seen as it approached the truck.

Killed were Marine Chief Warrant Officer 3 Gary Stouffer, 37; Army Sgt. Maj. Lawrence Boivin, 47; Army Sgt. Joshua Michael, 34; and Army Sgt. Maj. William Lubbers, 43. JUAN CARLOS LLORCA (AP)

About 200 attend a vigil Saturday in Midland, Texas, for four vets who died Thursday.

Backstory

National Transportation Safety Board investigators said Saturday that the second of two parade floats carrying U.S. military veterans began crossing the train tracks Thursday even though warning bells were sounding and lights were flashing. The train sounded its horn nine seconds before the crash. The guardrail hit the truck, and then the engineer pulled the emergency brake. Four veterans were killed; 16 others were hurt. (AP)

Airstrikes Tear Through Gaza

Conflict escalates as Israel starts to target homes of militants

Gaza City, Gaza Strip

An Israeli missile flattened a two-story house in a residential neighborhood of Gaza City on Sunday, killing at least 11 civilians, mostly women and children, Palestinian medical officials said, as Israel expanded a military offensive to target homes of wanted militants.

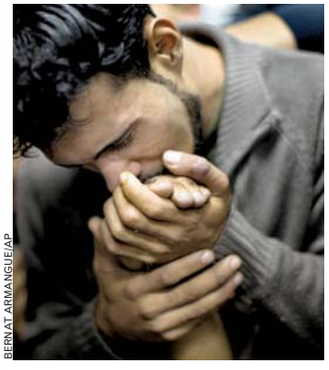

The attack, which Israel said targeted a militant, was the deadliest incident of the Israeli operation, according to Gaza medics. The bloodshed is likely to raise international pressure for a truce, with Egypt taking the lead in mediating.

An Israeli envoy arrived in Cairo on Sunday and reportedly held talks with Egyptian officials on a cease-fire. But Israel and Gaza's Hamas rulers remain far apart on any terms for a halt in the bloodshed, which has killed 70 Palestinians — including 36 civilians, Gaza officials say — and three Israeli civilians.

As the offensive moved forward, Israel found itself at a crossroads: on the cusp of launching a ground offensive into Gaza or pursuing Egyptian-led truce efforts.

Israel's announcement Sunday that it was widening its campaign to target homes of militants appeared to mark a new and risky phase of the operation, given the likelihood of civilian casualties. Israel launched the offensive Wednesday in a bid to end months of intensifying rocket fire from the Hamas-ruled Gaza Strip.

President Barack Obama said he had been in touch with the leaders of Israel, Egypt and Turkey in an effort to halt the fighting. "We're going to have to see what kind of progress we can make in the next 24, 36, 48 hours," he said. Obama cautioned against a potential Israeli ground invasion into Gaza. At the same time, he blamed Palestinian militants for starting the fighting, and he defended Israel's right to defend itself from missiles fired into its territory. (AP)

President Barack Obama toasts Thai Prime Minister Yingluck Shinawatra in Bangkok on Sunday in his first stop on a three-country swing through Asia.

With Tour, Obama Shifts Focus to Asia

President: Historic Myanmar stop is 'not an endorsement'

Bangkok

On the eve of his landmark trip to Myanmar, President Barack Obama tried to assure critics that his visit was not a premature reward for a long-isolated nation still easing its way toward democracy.

"This is not an endorsement of the government," Obama said Sunday in Thailand, opening a three-country dash through Asia. "This is an acknowledgement that there is a process under way inside that country that even a year and a half, two years ago, nobody foresaw."

Obama began his Asian tour in Bangkok with a visit to the Wat Pho Royal Monastery, walking in socks around a statue of a Buddha.

By arriving Monday, Obama was set to become the first U.S. president to visit Myanmar, the result of a remarkable turnaround in the countries' relationship.

He planned talks in Myanmar with Prime Minister Thein Sein, who has orchestrated much of his country's recent reforms, and was expected to meet with democracy activist Aung Sun Suu Kyi.

He will then head to Cambodia, which will be his final stop before returning to Washington on Wednesday. (AP)

Backstory

President Barack Obama's Asia tour marks his formal return to the world stage after months mired in a bruising re-election campaign. For his first postelection trip, he tellingly settled on Asia, a region he has deemed as crucial to U.S. prosperity and security. (AP)

Man Killed in Stabbing at Woodley

9 teens arrested after 18-year-old attacked inside Metro station

Washington

An 18-year-old graduate of a Montgomery County high school was fatally stabbed Saturday in the Woodley Park Metro station after a dispute with teenagers who had robbed him earlier, D.C. police said.

Authorities said Olijawon Griffin of Olney, Md., was attacked at about 1:15 a.m. inside the station after being robbed near the 1800 block of Columbia Road NW in the night-life area of Adams Morgan.

Griffin was a 2012 graduate of Sherwood High School, where he played football.

The attack appeared to be one of the most violent to occur inside the Metro system in many years. It also focused attention on the troubling problem of street robberies in the city.

Police said that nine youths, ranging in age from 15 to 17, were arrested. One of them, a 17-year-old male, was charged with second-degree murder while armed, police said.

Authorities said another of the youths was charged with aggravated assault and robbery. The others were charged with aggravated assault.

JAMES A. PARCEL/TWP/FILE

Police say a man, 18, was fatally stabbed at the Woodley Park station Saturday.

A second person was apparently injured in the dispute and taken to a hospital in stable condition, police said.

After the robbery on Columbia Road, Griffin and "other individuals" went to the Metro station, which is less than a mile away in the 2700 block of Connecticut Avenue, near the National Zoo. The station serves Adams Morgan and the zoo.

Inside, police said, Griffin and the others encountered the robbers. After the attack on Griffin was reported, D.C. police and Metro transit police quickly detained nine people, police said.

It was unclear what was taken in the robbery or where in the station the stabbing occurred.

Reginald Wilson II, 9, learns from his father, Reginald Wilson, at their home Nov. 15.

Adoption Day in District Creates New Families

Washington

In the world of foster kids and adoption, babies get scooped up quickly. The decks are more stacked against older children.

That is exactly why Reginald Wilson and Wesley McCammon wanted to adopt "older" children from the child welfare system. On Saturday, they officially became the parents of Reginald, 9, and Regina, 10, during the District's 26th annual Adoption Day ceremony at D.C. Superior Court.

It was a long journey that started for the couple in their native Mississippi and finished Saturday, when Wilson burst into tears as his family walked to the stage to get the adoption papers signed. D.C. Mayor Vincent Gray rose from his chair to comfort a sobbing Wilson, and Magistrate Judge Elizabeth Mullin, who signed the papers, brushed tears from her cheeks.

Wilson and McCammon, who celebrated their 20th anniversary Friday, moved from Mississippi to the Washington area last year so they could expand their family. In Mississippi, same-sex couples cannot adopt.

Reginald and Regina, who are biological siblings, have been living with Wilson and McCammon since April. The kids even changed their names to resemble Wilson's.

"I'm happy I have them because I'm appreciated," Regina said. "And I hope I live with them forever."

Campaign season in full swing with election a year away

Richmond, Va.

McAuliffe | Bolling | Cuccinelli | Salahi

Within 48 hours of the 2012 election, the Old Dominion's new political season had begun in earnest.

"I realize that after any election, some people's immediate question is about the next campaign," Democrat Terry McAuliffe wrote in an email to supporters Nov. 8. "I want to be straightforward with you: I plan on running for Governor of Virginia in 2013."

The election-weary commonwealth can soon look forward to a return to campaign season with a growing field of candidates vying in statewide contests still nearly a year away.

Several candidates have announced their intention to run for governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general — though official qualifying does not open until January.

The early fight in Virginia next year will be among Republicans, with Lt. Gov. Bill Bolling and Attorney General Ken Cuccinelli headlining the showdown for the governor's seat. The matchup features an establishment candidate versus a tea party favorite and illustrates the larger battle for control within the GOP.

Among the more colorful candidates expected to join the race is reality show star and vintner Tareq Salahi, who announced earlier this year that he planned to run as a Republican. Republicans will not choose their candidate through an open primary election but at their state convention, which is closed.

On the Democratic side, McAuliffe is the only candidate who has made his intentions known. But Sen. Mark Warner has been flirting with a bid to return to the Capitol, and recent polling suggests he would be a favorite to win next fall should the former governor decide to run.

If you're shopping on Black Friday, be prepared to stand in line, possibly for hours.

Your Black Friday Game Plan Is Here

If you're partaking in the madness, you better have a strategy

Personal Finance

Black Friday is Election Day for retailers. There are winners and losers. And like with elections, you'll take a shellacking if your strategy doesn't hold up against the competition.

Like it or not, Black Friday is an American tradition. If you're up for the frenzy, have a game plan. Here's what retail and shopping insiders think you should know:

How to Prepare

Jody Rohlena of ShopSmart Magazine recommends familiarizing yourself with the store layout before Black Friday. "If you're looking to buy a door buster, know where it's going to be in the store," Rohlena said. Know the times that the stores open, and be prepared to wait in long lines.

Most retailers released previews of their Black Friday circulars early this month. Visit stores to get their Black Friday ads, or check out some of our favorite comparison sites: Pricegrabber.com, Blackfriday.com, Fatwallet.com/BlackFriday, Bradsdeals.com. And follow @BlackFriday on Twitter.

Keep Your Sanity

You likely won't find a "door buster" after Black Friday. But there will be holiday sales well into January. "Brick-and-mortar stores are competing more than ever for foot traffic, so be prepared to hear about new deals after Black Friday," said Craig LaRosa, a retail consultant at Continuum. And if shopping stresses you out, remember that no deal is worth losing your sanity. (TWP)

Price Matching

You should study up on price-matching policies. Target and Best Buy are implementing aggressive price matches and will match the prices of Walmart.com and Amazon.com during the holiday season. And you can use price matches if the item goes on sale in-store after you buy. So stay alert, and, as always, keep your receipts.

Return Policies

"Leverage the return policy," said Craig LaRosa, a retail consultant at Continuum. According to the National Retail Federation, $217 billion in merchandise purchased last Black Friday was returned. Holidays are the best time to correct shopping mistakes. "That's when retailers are relaxed," he said.

Redskins Dismantle Eagles in Win

Team records largest margin of victory in Shanahan's tenure

Redskins	7	10	7	7	31
Eagles	0	3	3	0	6

The Washington Redskins found comfort in their return to NFC East play. They ran into a team with struggles even more pronounced than theirs and took full advantage, beating the Philadelphia Eagles with ease, 31-6, Sunday as quarterback Robert Griffin III threw four touchdown passes in a nearly flawless outing at FedEx Field.

Griffin had touchdown passes of six yards to fullback Darrel Young, 49 yards to wide receiver Aldrick Robinson, 61 yards to wideout Santana Moss and 17 yards to tight end Logan Paulsen as part of his 14-for-15, 200-yard passing day. It was the first four-touchdown passing game in the NFL for Griffin, who didn't throw an interception. He had a perfect passer rating of 158.3 and also rushed for 84 yards.

The Redskins, coming off their bye week, ended their losing streak at three games and improved their record to 4-6. In the oh-so-forgiving NFC East, that's good enough for them to be two games behind the idle New York Giants and a game behind the Dallas Cowboys. The Redskins play a Thanksgiving Day game at Dallas.

It was the Redskins' largest margin of victory under their third-year coach, Mike Shanahan. Their most lopsided win under Shanahan previously had been 14 points.

The last-place Eagles (3-7) extended the longest losing streak of Coach Andy Reid's tenure.

Nick Foles, Philadelphia's rookie starter at quarterback, threw a pair of early interceptions and led the Eagles to only a pair of field goals. Tailback LeSean McCoy lost a fumble in the final seconds of the first half to set up a Redskins field goal that gave Washington a 17-3 halftime lead.

Cornerback DeAngelo Hall and safety Brandon Meriweather had the Redskins' interceptions, but Meriweather, playing his first game this season, also suffered what the team called a sprained right knee.

Wide receiver Pierre Garcon returned to the Redskins' lineup after missing four games because of an ailing right foot. He was mostly a nonfactor, with three catches for five yards.

Sunday's contest began a stretch of three straight Redskins games against NFC East foes, which has given them hope of reassembling their season.

Robert Griffin III of the Redskins stiff-arms Eagles defensive end Jason Babin in the second quarter Sunday afternoon.

Report Card

BEST CALL: In the second quarter, the Redskins ran a double fake handoff play that left Aldrick Robinson wide open for a 49-yard TD catch. Eagles defense was fooled.

WORST CALL: In the first quarter, on third and 1, they ran a pitch play to Alfred Morris that was blown up for a 5-yard loss. Way too cute.

BEST ADJUSTMENT: The Redskins finally committed to the run in a way that paid dividends. Even in losing the time of possession battle, they controlled the game's tempo.

A The Eagles are a Dumpster fire, but the Redskins played four good quarters.

PATRICK SMITH/GETTY IMAGES

Meriweather Back

Redskins strong safety Brandon Meriweather said he felt "fine" despite spraining his right knee and missing the majority of the second half of his team's 31-6 victory Sunday. Meriweather said he believes he could have returned to action, but he and the team took a more cautious approach because Washington has a short turnaround this week and will play at Dallas on Thursday. Sunday Recap

WEEK 11

Top Dogs

Matt Schaub, QB, Texans

Without Schaub's monster numbers (throwing for career-high five TDs, a franchise-record 43 passes and 527 yards passing, second most in NFL history), the Texans never would have scraped by Jacksonville in overtime, 43-37.

Nick Folk, PK, Jets

A pair of 51-yard field goals made Folk the second kicker in franchise history to put up 50-yarders in a game, as the Jets bested the Rams, 27-13. QB Mark Sanchez led a turnover-free offense as the team ended a three-game slide.

5 The number of interceptions Atlanta quarterback Matt Ryan threw Sunday against the Arizona Cardinals, a career worst. But Ryan overcame his offensive struggles to lift the Falcons (9-1) to a sloppy 23-19 victory over the Cardinals. Coming off a bye, Arizona (4-6) lost its sixth-straight game. (AP)

Dallas Takes Down Cleveland in OT

SHARON ELLMAN/AP

The Browns' Trent Richardson fumbles Sunday in the second half, brought down by the Cowboys' Gerald Sensabaugh. Dan Bailey kicked the winning 38-yard field goal in overtime for Dallas, which rallied from a 13-0 halftime deficit.

United Falls Short at RFK

MLS Cup hopes dashed with 4-2 aggregate loss to Dynamo in series

Pro Soccer

D.C. United faced a monumental task in the last leg of MLS's Eastern Conference finals Sunday, and before the first banner-carrying supporters turned RFK Stadium into a festival of color and sound, the challenge grew taller.

Leading scorer Chris Pontius was ruled out and top defender Brandon McDonald was unable to start. Everything was working against second-seeded United, and when Houston's Boniek Garcia scored in the first half, D.C.'s MLS Cup ambitions had been all but extinguished.

United did come back to earn a 1-1 draw on Branko Boskovic's late goal in front of 20,015 black-clad observers. But even the return of Dwayne De Rosario couldn't unnerve the Dynamo, which built a two-goal advantage in the opener of the two-game, total-goals series.

Houston, the No. 5 seed, secured a 4-2 aggregate victory and will go on the road for the Dec. 1 final.

Because of injury and suspension issues, as well as the need to take the initiative in a must-win match, Ben Olsen had several options to consider during the week. By game time, he had chosen his 33rd different lineup in 38 league matches.

Returning from a one-game penalty, goalkeeper Bill Hamid regained his starting job ahead of Joe Willis. A sore back, however, had put into question Hamid's availability, and he wasn't cleared until about an hour before kickoff.

Andy Najar remained out after receiving an additional two-game reprimand for a red card, allowing Robbie Russell to retain the slot at right back. Defender Brandon McDonald (calf) and midfielder Marcelo Saragosa (knee) were also uncertain after leaving Game 1. McDonald wasn't ready to start, but Saragosa was.

The big questions involved the club's most influential attackers, De Rosario and Pontius. De Rosario had not played competitively since Sept. 11, when he sprained a knee ligament while with Canada's national team. Sunday marked almost nine weeks on a recovery timetable estimated between 10 and 12 weeks.

De Rosario had resumed regular workouts two weeks ago and showed no restraint in recent sessions. But the two-month layoff had deteriorated his fitness. In the best-case scenario, United hoped to squeeze maybe a half out of him.

Pontius (groin) wasn't well enough to even make the gameday roster. Olsen broke from recent form and played two forwards instead of one, pairing Maicon Santos with Lionard Pajoy.

With De Rosario and Pontius out, Saragosa wore the captain's armband for the first time.

Despite United's need for goals, Olsen had emphasized the importance of patience. United couldn't afford to get caught committing too many players forward and allowing a counterattack goal.

United was sharp at the start, moving the ball well and serving dangerous balls into the box. The movement wasn't fast enough, though, and Houston never lost its shape.

United drew even in the match, if not the series, in the 83rd minute when Boskovic worked a give-and-go with Santos and beat four defenders before finishing into the near corner.

Missed Opportunity

With the series defeat, United missed a chance to qualify for the 2013-14 CONCACAF Champions League, the club tournament for North and Central America and the Caribbean. Sporting Kansas City (the U.S. Open Cup champion), the San Jose Earthquakes (which had the most points in the regular season) and the MLS Cup finalists will represent American soccer. (TWP)

After suffering a concussion, Otto Porter returns to action Monday for Georgetown.

Hoyas Face Tough Test in Brooklyn

Team comes into tournament with 2 wins, still underdogs

Hoyas Hoops

Thanksgiving week 2011. After the unranked Hoyas opened the season with two victories over inferior opponents, they headed to Hawaii for a tournament matchup with highly ranked Kansas. The young team lost a tight battle with the Jayhawks, but a subsequent victory in the tournament over even-higher-ranked Memphis foreshadowed the Hoyas' 24-win campaign.

A year later, the Hoyas' situation is pretty much the same. Georgetown (2-0) has notched two wins over non-power conference schools as an unranked program. Now comes the Legends Classic tournament at the brand-new Barclays Center in Brooklyn (not quite Hawaii, but still …), where the Hoyas will face No. 13 UCLA in the semifinals Monday followed by a meeting against either top-ranked Indiana or Georgia.

"We can look at this game like the Kansas game. It's an early game against a top-tier opponent," Hoyas coach John Thompson III said of Monday's clash with the Bruins (3-0). "We're coming in as an underdog and we hope we can do well. … We know we're not as far along as we were last year going into the Kansas game. Hopefully the outcome is different."

Having Otto Porter available will certainly help. The All-American candidate has played only six minutes this season because of a concussion, but the sophomore forward returned to practice this past week.

"We use these games to find ourselves, to find what this team's identity is going to be," said junior forward Nate Lubick, who set a career high with 13 points against Liberty. "I don't think our sense of urgency has been there."

Double Vision

For Nintendo's new Wii U console, two screens are much better than one

Video Games

When Nintendo first broached the idea of multiple-screen video games in 2004, many critics were skeptical that players could focus on two images at once. Yet the handheld DS, blending one touch-sensitive screen with a slightly larger video display, became a runaway hit.

Turns out the portable DS may have just been a dress rehearsal for Nintendo's latest home console, the Wii U, which blows up the dual-screen concept to living-room size. On sale now, the basic Wii U model, with 8 gigabytes of internal storage, costs $300. The deluxe set, with 32 GB, the "Nintendo Land" game and a charging stand for the controller, costs $350.

The Wii U is the heir to the Nintendo Wii system, whose motion-based controls got couch potatoes around the world to burn calories as they swung virtual tennis rackets, bowled and flailed around in their living rooms. The new console still allows you to use your old "Wiimotes," but its major advancement is a new controller, the GamePad, with a built-in touch screen that measures 6.2 inches diagonally.

And it's the touch screen that really makes a difference. In some cases, it houses functions that are typically relegated to a game's pause screen. In others, it allows a group of people playing the same game together to have different experiences depending on the controller used. Nintendo Co. calls this "asymmetric gaming."

In the mini-game collection "Nintendo Land," you can shoot arrows or fling throwing stars by swiping on the touch screen.

"New Super Mario Bros. U" brings the asymmetric approach to cooperative action. While Wiimote-wielding players scamper across its side-scrolling landscapes, the GamePad user can create "boost blocks" to help them reach otherwise inaccessible areas. If you're going solo, you can play the entire adventure on the GamePad screen, freeing up the TV for family members who might want to watch something else.

The Wii U may not make as big a splash as the original Wii did six years ago, but it manages to go all in on the multiscreen concept for a relatively inexpensive price. And in a world where people tweet on their iPads while watching sports or reality shows on their TVs, the whole GamePad concept feels perfectly natural.

The Wii U's success will depend on what Nintendo and other developers do with that second screen. The early results are very promising. LOU KESTEN (AP)

A New Way To Play

The Wii U GamePad looks like the spawn of a tablet and a classic game controller. It has an accelerometer and gyroscope for motion-controlled games, as well as a camera, a microphone, speakers, two analog joysticks and a typical array of buttons. It's about three times as thick as an iPad because it has hand grips that make it more comfortable. (AP)

Updates

Enhanced Everything

The high-definition graphics produced by the Wii U are close to those of Microsoft's Xbox 360 and Sony's PlayStation 3. That means some fine games from the past couple of years — "Batman: Arkham City," "Mass Effect 3" and "Darksiders II" — are finally coming to a Nintendo console. The Wii U's online functions include video chat, its own social network and the ability to search for TV shows and movies from services such as Netflix and Hulu. (AP)

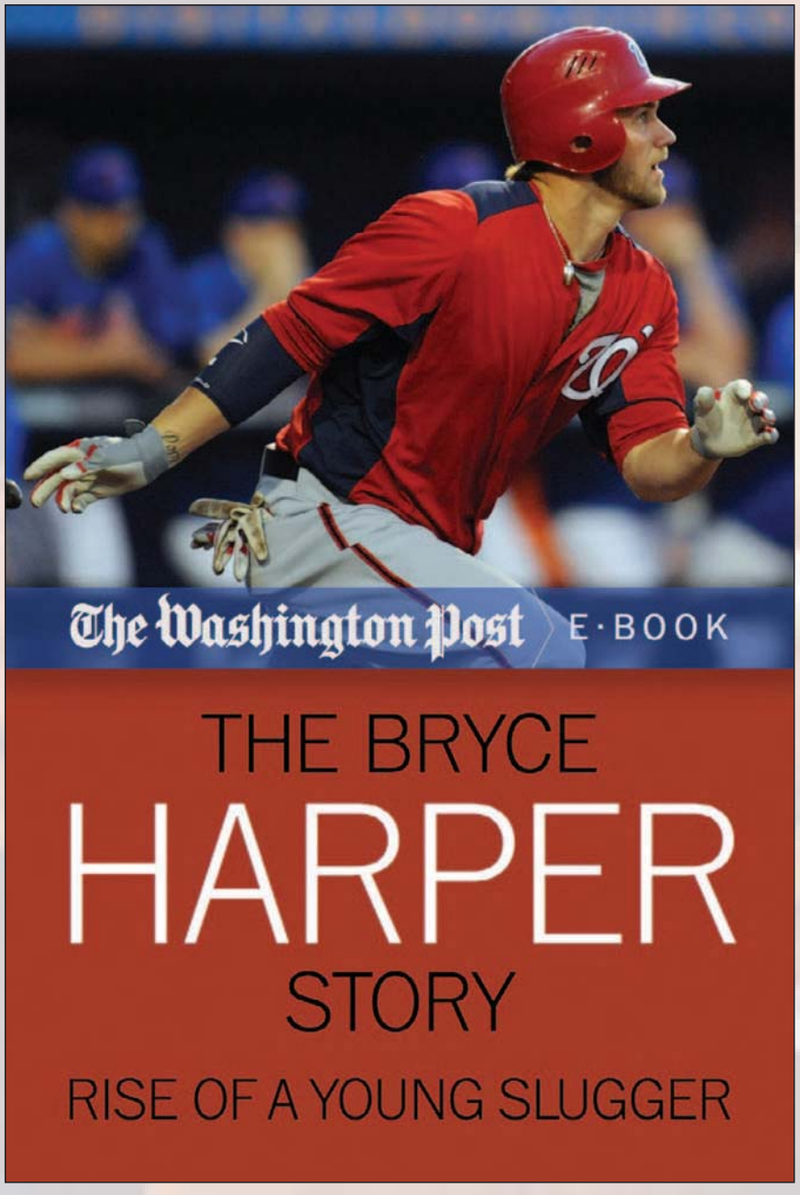

If you compare Nintendo's Wii U to its portable DS, then your TV would be the equivalent of the DS' top display.

The Wii U GamePad functions like the bottom of the DS, with triggers, buttons and the touch screen offering extra control.

Andre 3K: No Rush To Record

Music

For the most part, Andre 3000, one-half of OutKast, has been out of music since 2006. While his bandmate, Big Boi, will release a new solo disc next month, Andre 3000 isn't in a rush to record an album.

"Some days I feel like I'll do it, some days I don't," he says of a solo disc. "Some days I feel like I don't need to, some days I feel like I want to do it before I die."

He's also not sure if fans want a new OutKast album for the right reasons.

"I'm not the type that prescribes to nostalgia, and most people say they want an OutKast album because they used to love it," he says. "But you may not like it now, who knows?" MESFIN FEKADU (AP)

Actress Keira Knightley, left, and director Joe Wright work on the set of the film "Anna Karenina."

LAURIE SPARHAM

A Living Picture

In 'Anna Karenina,' director Joe Wright uses stillness as a key way to communicate

Film

Some of the most moving moments of Joe Wright's "Anna Karenina" are perfectly still.

In this latest adaptation of the Tolstoy novel, which arrived in theaters Friday, Keira Knightley plays the titular heroine, making her way through 19th-century Moscow society. Married to a government bureaucrat (Jude Law), she eventually begins an affair with Vronsky, a soldier (Aaron Taylor-Johnson).

Wright's film sets the action inside a fading theater, suggesting that all of the characters are themselves actors, playing roles for the benefit of Russian society. The action occasionally takes place on an actual stage; some scenes are very theatrical, with scenery rolling in and out. Other scenes are not possible at the local playhouse (at one point, a group of horses gallops across the boards). Pushing even further, Wright crafts scenes that are nearly or entirely still, adopting the technique of tableaux vivant ("living picture") in a medium that by definition depends on movement.

Rather than adhering to a natural style of acting (the one most common in today's cinema), "I was interested in playing with a style of performance that was far more physical, far more about movement," the British director says. "About how bodies relate to each other, and stillness is a part of that." After all, stillness is a powerful tool of communication — think about the person splayed across two seats on the Metro who's staring out the window, completely immobile. The message — "don't sit next to me" — is clear.

The theatrical nature of this adaptation isn't just Wright seeing what he can do — he believes the setting best conveys Tolstoy's meaning.

"The idea that Anna, as a lot of us do, lived a life playing a role that perhaps didn't suit her anymore" was important to communicate, Wright says. "I think also people take on roles and play them really well sometimes but don't understand that there could be other scripts."

Anna's pursuit of another script leads her to make difficult — some would say immoral — decisions, among the most difficult of which is to leave her son to pursue her affair with Vronsky.

"People take on roles and play them really well sometimes but don't understand that there could be other scripts."

"Tolstoy didn't set out to write kind of a martyred heroine," Wright says. "I think we have a misconception because of prior adaptations that have taught us that what ["Anna Karenina"] is is a great big love story — which it is — but at the heart of it is this noble kind of woman, which she isn't ... Anna's story is possibly more of a lust story." KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

'REVOLUTION'

End-of-the-World Songs

NBC 10:00 What tunes fit a post-apocalyptic society? For NBC's freshman drama "Revolution," the answer is Led Zeppelin's "Kashmir" and "Since I've Been Loving You." The songs will be featured in tonight's episode of "Revolution," on the same day that Led Zeppelin's "Celebration Day" album and a companion documentary on DVD will be released. Corporate synergy led to the deal for the onetime rock band that rarely allows use of its music in Hollywood projects. "Revolution" is produced in association with Warner Bros. Television, and Led Zeppelin has a deal with Warner Music Group's publishing arm. LYNN ELBER (AP)

"Why does Brian Billick keep saying RGIII's athleticism is subtle? It isn't subtle."

— @DCSPORTSBOG couldn't understand why the former Ravens coach-turned-broadcaster wasn't more direct with his praise of Robert Griffin III on Sunday.

"Can't you just imagine James Franco using a creepy robot voice at the exact wrong moment, or suddenly looking up with tiny plastic dinosaurs Super-glued all over his face? We're not saying you can't enjoy that if that's your thing, but still ... James Franco seems like a sex scene loose cannon."

— HALLE KIEFER at vh1.com/celebrity reacts to news that Vanessa Hudgens swore off sex scenes in movies after working with Franco on the set of "Spring Breakers."

"Did I just do the Not Impressed face with the President..?"

— Yes, @MCKAYLA MARONEY did get to do her signature pose with President Barack Obama during her visit to Washington last week.

"Maybe the most racist thing I have seen in a while ... well post election coverage anyway."

— @BRYANWEAVERDC found the flier for McFadden's "Party Like a Pilgrim, Drink like an Indian" party offensive.

"Oh, Kim. When will you and 'Ye realize that no good comes from Twitter? Except maybe Instagrammed photos of people's brunch?"

— ANNA BRESLAW at Jezebel.com thinks that Kim Kardashian's tweet of "Praying for everyone in Israel" wasn't very well thought out.

depressed?

NIH is studying a novel medication for rapid antidepressant response and its effect on memory & attention using neuroimaging.

NIH researchers seek currently depressed persons ages 18-55 to enroll in research studies evaluating how an FDA-approved drug, Scopolamine (for motion sickness) versus placebo can help with depression. In one study, the drug is given intravenously over 7-sessions (inpatient or outpatient), in the other the drug is given by patch over 12 sessions (outpatient). Participants must not be taking medications for three weeks prior to starting the study.

The studies are conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Maryland, and may include brain imaging and attention and memory tasks to help understand the role of some brain chemicals in depression.

Horoscope

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may have to work to keep up with someone who is feeling more inspired than you are — and who has more practical experience as well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You mustn't let nerves stand in your way; you can do what is required of you without any doubt or insecurity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may find yourself in the uncomfortable position of having to thank someone for doing what you may not have wanted.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You must keep your emotions in check as you encounter a situation that has others boiling over. Self-control is the key.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You will have time to take stock, personally and professionally. You may feel as though something is missing — but why?

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others are depending on you to do precisely what you have said you will do — no more and no less. You can make another's dreams come true.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your advice to another is likely to be "mind your own business" — and, indeed, it's a good idea to take your own advice as well!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will want to communicate honestly and directly. Don't try to confuse another with double-talk, as it will only backfire on you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) News you receive early in the day will color your activities until nightfall and beyond. It may be time to circle the wagons.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The way you do certain things is likely to attract criticism, but you can weather anything that comes your way if you are true to yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may find yourself more deeply involved in a situation not of your making. Keep your eyes open and you'll spot a rare opportunity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It's important to keep moving; only by building momentum will you avoid the kinds of setbacks plaguing those around you.
